New Residential Practice Center in Seattle

Chobo-Ji, a Rinzai Zen Temple in Seattle, is developing a residential practice center on North Beacon Hill. Participants will pay a monthly tuition/rent to occupy or share a private one-bedroom apartment in the 8 unit building, and commit to a weekly practice schedule (meditation, work, study, some meals) based in the same building. Apartments are now available in the building, but the on-site Zen practice center won't begin until after an extensive remodel, which will take approximately a year. In the mean time, if you are interested in joining our enterprise, you may want to rent an apartment now, and be first in line to apply to be a practice resident. Please email Carolyn Stevens at carolyn@choboji.org.

The email address carolyn@choboji.org is an address associated with the Dai Bai Zan Cho Bo Zen Ji Zen temple in Seattle. <http://www.choboji.org/> It is Genjo Marinello's place in Seattle, Genjo is Shimano's fifth Dharma heir and sits on the Zen Studies Society Board of Directors.

Now:

In her email to you her address in her email to you Carolyn Stevens uses this address: <Carolyn@jjco.com> which is associated with <http://www.jjco.com/>

That is the web site for Jacobson Jarvis Certified Public Accountants located in... (you guessed it) Seattle! Their employee page <http://www.jjco.com/corporate/people-prostaff.html> lists:

So, we've got Carolyn Stevens (educated, Zen student) in Seattle... We can get her to positively tip her hand (or let her know that we know who she is working for - depending on how observant she is) by you replying to her temple email address: carolyn@choboji.org

Easy cheesy!
